As someone that only knew him for a short time said, "He was hoot, he was funny and one of the sweetest men alive." He had endured various illnesses, but that took the largest toll on his body was Myasthenia Gravis.

Don died way before his time, but perhaps his journey on this earth had come to a close. I send my deepest condolences to my dear cousin, Nancy Patee, who was fortunate to be married to this amazing man and to be treated like a queen. May all the wonderful memories of your time together remain forever in your heart.
